Prices Research Activity

As it was decided that I would be researching activates based on red letter days, I Looked at the red letter day website to find out about the different activities available for us to include in their day out.

Since the students doing the activity would be around 16 years of age, it seemed appropriate that the activity would be adventurous and fun, so that they enjoy it much more. So I searched through the red letter day criteria of adventurous activities to find a suitable event.

Kids' Kayaking

I finally decided to choose white water rafting from the list; this was as the students could o this activity together and also do something adventurous at the same time. It costs £49 per head and comes out to a total price of £1,960 providing we take 40 students
