

Copyright ©

© Copyright is basically the right for anyone who makes a photo or movie clips, and publishes it, that nobody else can then use it for themselves without permission. In my project I have used many pictures published by people who have copyright on their images or video clips; I have noted the ones which I had not made in my assets table.

Copyrighted materials usually have a little © logo, as shown in the title.

For example this photo was not made by me, and the owner has a copyright for it, therefore I normally would not be able to use it and publish anything with it inside.

However was made entirely by me, so I can use it as much as I like. Because it was made by me other people cannot use this exact picture

However I am able to use copyright files, only because I am a student, and because I am not going to actually publish anything with those elements on the internet myself.